

Transfer Credits

A. General Provisions

1. Circumstances under which the College of Law may accept transfer credits

Subject to the specific provisions in this section and the sections below, J.D. candidates and students are permitted to transfer academic credits to the College of Law in the following circumstances:

- Transferring into Stetson University College of Law's J.D. program following matriculation at another ABA- or state-approved law school.
- Matriculating into Stetson University College of Law's J.D. program after earning a foreign law degree from an accredited foreign institution.
- Visiting as a transient student at another ABA-approved law school following matriculation at Stetson University College of Law, if approved in advance by Stetson University College of Law.
- Attending another ABA-approved law school's study-abroad program, if approved in advance by Stetson University College of Law.
- Completing one of Stetson University College of Law's approved dual-degree programs.

Absent extraordinary circumstances as determined by the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, students are not permitted to transfer credit into any of Stetson University College of Law's LL.M. or M.J. programs.

2. Number of credits transferred

The credits transferred into the College of Law by any of these means are cumulative, and limited to 29 credits and two semesters of residency, except as provided for transfer credit from ABA-approved law schools, as described in Section B below. A student will be limited to the maximum transfer credits stated in the applicable section below, even if the student has earned more than that number at the transferring institution and those credits otherwise meet Stetson University College of Law's standards.

3. Limitations on transfer credits

The following limitations apply to the transfer of credits into the J.D. program, regardless of the means of transfer:

- No credit will transfer unless the student earned at least a 2.0, C, 70, Satisfactory, Pass, or equivalent grade in the course.
- No credit will transfer for credits earned in a program from a non-law program (e.g., an M.B.A. or other graduate program), except for a dual-degree program offered by Stetson University College of Law, even if the transferring law school would have awarded credit toward a law degree or dual-degree for those courses.
- Except in accordance with Section 507 of the American Bar Association's Standards for Approval of Law Schools, no credit will transfer from a non-J.D. program at another law school.
- No credit will transfer if the Associate Dean, in his or her sole discretion, determines that the course does not meet the academic standards of Stetson University College of Law. Alternatively, the Associate Dean may determine that partial credit for a particular course may transfer based on the College of Law's academic standards.

A final decision regarding the transfer of credits will not be made until an official transcript is received by the College of Law.

4. Required courses

Absent extraordinary circumstances as determined by the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, a transfer student must complete the College of Law's required curriculum as it exists at the time that the student matriculates at the College of Law. A transfer student also must complete all College of Law graduation requirements to earn a J.D. degree.

Based on a review of the student's transcript from the transferring school, and a comparison of the transferring school's curriculum with the College of Law's curriculum, the Associate Dean will determine which required courses a student must take at the College of Law. The Associate Dean may request that the transferring student provide course descriptions, syllabi, professor contact information, or other information that the Associate Dean deems necessary to determine whether a student has successfully completed the courses in the College of Law's required curriculum.

If the Associate Dean determines that a transfer student has satisfactorily completed a course in the required curriculum, he or she has the discretion to waive a particular course for the student, even if transfer credits are not awarded for that course.

5. Transcripts

Transfer credits will appear by semester on a student's transcript; a student who needs an official transcript of the courses taken and grades earned in courses transferred to the College of Law should request that information from the institution that awarded the credit initially.

B. J.D. Students Transferring from Another U.S. Law School

1. Section applicability: This section applies to a student who is accepted into the College of Law's J.D. program as a transfer student and seeks to transfer credit from his or her prior program at a U.S. law school. This section does not apply to a student who may have matriculated at another U.S. law school but applied to the College of Law to restart as an entering student.
2. Eligibility for transfer: The College of Law typically accepts a limited number of transfer students from other U.S. law schools for the fall semester. On occasion, a spring or summer transfer may be considered. Except in extraordinary circumstances, a student may transfer to the College of Law only after completing one year (fall and spring) of full-time or part-time study at another ABA- or state-accredited law school.
3. Application for transfer: A student interested in transferring to the College of Law should complete and submit an application to the Office of Admissions. Admissions decisions are made by the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, in consultation with the Admissions Committee and the Executive Director of Admissions and Financial Aid. A student who applies for transfer may also apply for transient student status; applications for transient student status are filed with the Office of the Registrar. Although an admissions decision typically will be made after the College of Law receives two semesters of grades from the applicant, on occasion, admission may be awarded to exceptionally well-qualified applicants after only semester of law-school grades. For additional details on the application process, please consult the Admissions section of the College of Law's website.
4. Maximum number of transfer credits: The College of Law may accept up to 36 credits and two semesters of residency for a student transferring from another ABA-accredited law school. Students transferring from a state-accredited law school may not transfer more than 29 credits to the College of Law.
5. Determining transfer credits: The College of Law will endeavor to provide the transferring candidate with an analysis of the credits that will or will not transfer before the deadline for the student to accept the College of Law's offer of admission.

C. J.D. Applicants with a Foreign Law Degree or an LL.M. from a U.S. Law School

1. Section applicability: This section applies to a J.D. candidate who has earned a law degree from a foreign law school accredited in that country, or a J.D. candidate who has earned an LL.M. degree from a U.S. law school before matriculating into Stetson's J.D. program. Any credits transferred under this section must be consistent with Section 507 of the Standards American Bar Association's Standards for Approval of Law Schools.

2. Application for transfer credit: The College of Law will endeavor to provide the J.D. applicant with a foreign law degree with an analysis of the credits that will or will not transfer before the deadline for the student to accept the College of Law's offer of admission.
3. Determining transfer credits: For a foreign law degree, the candidate may be required to submit a translation and/or analysis of his or her transcript, and must pay for that service.

D. Stetson J.D. Students as Transient Students

1. Section applicability: This section applies to any current Stetson University College of Law J.D. student who seeks to transfer credits taken as a transient student at another ABA-accredited institution. These credits must have been earned after the student matriculates at Stetson University College of Law. This section does not apply to credits taken at another law school's study-abroad program; those programs are addressed in the following section. This section also does not apply to Stetson-sponsored exchange programs; credits earned in these programs are not transfer, but exchange, credits. Stetson offers exchange programs with the University of Granada, Spain and Monterrey Technical University, Mexico.
2. Eligibility for transfer credit: Under limited circumstances, the College of Law may accept toward the J.D. degree credits taken at another ABA-accredited law school. Absent exceptional circumstances, such as military service, a student may not visit at another law school until after he or she has completed 29 credits. In addition, absent exceptional circumstances, a transient student may not transfer more than 29 credits to the College of Law.
3. Application to visit at another school:

Students seeking permission to visit away at another ABA-approved law school must petition the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs. Approval will be granted only when the student's continued presence in the Tampa/St. Petersburg area places an exceptional hardship on the student. An example of a qualifying circumstance would be the onset of a severe illness of a close family member that requires the student's presence outside of the Tampa/St. Petersburg area. For further information and assistance contact the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs.

E. Credits from Another Law School's Study-Abroad Program

1. Section applicability: This section applies to any current Stetson University College of Law J.D. student who seeks to transfer credits from another ABA-accredited institution's study-abroad program. These credits must have been earned after the student matriculates at Stetson University College of Law.

2. Eligibility for transfer credit: Under limited circumstances, the College of Law accepts toward the J.D. degree credits taken through another ABA-accredited law school's study-abroad program. A student may not attend another law school's study-abroad program until he or she has completed at least 29 credits at the College of Law.

3. Application to visit at another school: A student interested in attending a study-abroad program at another institution must receive the approval of the Director of International Programs and the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs before enrolling at the other institution; application forms for approval to visit at another school are available through the Office of Graduate and International Programs. The application for summer-abroad programs must be submitted no later than March 1 of the year in which the student intends to study abroad. The application for semester abroad-programs must be submitted no later than two months before the date on which the program begins. Considerations of whether to allow attendance at another school's study-abroad program may include, among others:
 - The length of the program: generally, a student may earn no more than one credit per week of studies in a summer-abroad program. Thus, a program offering four credits should last at least four weeks.
 - The location of the program: generally, a student may not attend a program if Stetson has a program in a similar location.
 - The educational content of the program: whether the program offers unique classes not available through Stetson's standard or study abroad programs.

4. Maximum number of transfer credits: The College of Law will accept up to four credits for a student attending summer-abroad programs with other institutions. The College of Law will accept up to 17 credits and one semester of residency for a student attending a semester-abroad program with another institution. These totals are cumulative for all study-abroad programs attended at other institutions over the student's J.D. program; thus, a student may not earn more than 21 study abroad credits from other institutions, of which no more than 4 may be in summer-abroad programs and no more than 17 may be in a semester-abroad program.

5. Determining transfer credits: Before the student enrolls in the other law school's program, the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs will determine the maximum number of credits and semesters of residency that may transfer for the specific program(s) the student intends to complete. No credit will transfer to the College of Law for credit earned in programs outside of the visited law school's study-abroad program, even if the visited law school would have awarded credit toward a law degree for those courses.

6. Required courses: A student may not transfer credit toward the College of Law's required curriculum through participation in a study-abroad program, except for area requirements with the advance approval of the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs.
