Political Science

For generations, an education in political science at Stetson has prepared graduates for distinguished careers in law and public service and in fields as diverse as journalism and business. A distinctive feature of Stetson’s program is its emphasis on opportunities for learning beyond the classroom—through study abroad, internships, participation in the Washington Semester and the Model Senate, and small-group conversations with visiting lecturers. Divided into four subdisciplines—American government, comparative politics, international relations, and political theory and methodology—political science examines the institutions, social structures, and ideas that shape local communities, state and national governments, and the international order. A major or minor in political science gives students a broad education in public affairs and social science methodology while encouraging critical thinking and a mastery of oral and written expression.

Learning Outcomes

Student learning outcomes describe what students know, understand and are able to do as a result of completing a degree program. The learning outcomes for this program are:

1. Apply social science methodological tools to explain political processes and outcomes and/or to critique existing explanations
2. Analyze and appraise political regimes using structural, institutional, historical, cultural and/or ethical theoretical frameworks found in the literature.
3. Propose, produce, and defend an independently researched paper that demonstrates an original interpretation of a political problem through the use of primary and secondary sources
4. Construct and defend valid and dispassionate arguments and relate them to long-standing and contemporary debates and controversies in the field of political science

Courses

POLI 101S. American National Government. 1 Unit.
Focuses on tools for understanding and evaluating the major policy choices in the American political system. Specific topics treated include principles of American democracy and the United States Constitution, political culture, interest groups, political parties, elections, and the major policy-making institutions (Congress, the President, the Bureaucracy, and the Courts).

POLI 102S. Florida Politics. 1 Unit.
Studies the federal system and the role of the states and communities in the American political system. Contemporary politics and public policies in the state of Florida are examined and discussed.

POLI 105B. Political Ideologies. 1 Unit.
Explores the differing value bases for major ideological/philosophical streams of political thought and orientations such as classical liberalism and socialism, modern neoliberalism, social democracy and the “third way.” Additional options could include “greenism,” multiculturalism, and/or Islamicism. The concepts of “human nature” and “natural rights” are stressed, including the debate over “human rights” as exclusively inhering to the individual, or including group/community rights as well.

POLI 145S. Politics of the Developing World. 1 Unit.
Looks at the interactions between the pursuit of economic development and the social and political systems of Third World nations since 1945. After reviewing basic notions and theories of development, the course deals with central development issues and broader development-related problems associated with social disorder, corruption, poverty, and violence. Issues of democratization and institutional change are also prominently featured.

POLI 190. Special Topics in Political Science. 1 Unit.

POLI 201S. Comparative Politics. 1 Unit.
Political institutions and behavior in selected European, Communist, and developing countries are examined in their cultural contexts and in relation to the general theories of comparative politics. The course is designed to expose the student to the tools of comparative political analysis as well as to the varied structures and functions of modern political systems.

POLI 202S. European Politics. 1 Unit.
Provides comparative analysis of countries with similarities in political cultures, institutions, and processes, but with significant differences also. Students will examine which political behavior traits are unique and which are similar among industrialized, democratic nations. Students will also study the European Union.

POLI 203S. International Relations. 1 Unit.
A survey of the diplomatic, legal, economic, military, and organizational relations of nations and the major contemporary problems of world politics. The forces of change in the international system and the impact of sovereignty, nationalism, and power politics are given special attention.

POLI 210H. American Political Development. 1 Unit.
This course applies historical analysis to understanding American government since the founding period. Complementing the Introduction to American Government course, this class will examine many of the same topics, like the Presidency, political parties, and political participation, but go a step further in asking how these subjects have changed and evolved over time.

POLI 211. Politics of Public Policy. 1 Unit.
Policymaking is seen as a methodical process of identifying a problem, weighing costs and benefits of policy alternatives, and implementing the ideal solution. In reality, politics makes this process far messier. Students in this course will be the policymakers and explore how every step, from developing, passing and implementing policy solutions, is complicated by the United States’ complex political system.

POLI 215V. Sustainable Communities: Participation, Planning, and Policy. 1 Unit.
This course focuses on Stetson’s Environmental Responsibility Value. How do we make our communities more sustainable in terms of the environment, economic development, civic life, and equality? This course explores the answers to that question by reviewing the evolution of the metropolitan system in the United States, comparing contemporary approaches to comprehensive sustainability in local communities, and engaging in community-based projects to understand the practical problems of community sustainability. Topics include urban planning, smart growth, demography, civic engagement and regional policy-making systems.

POLI 225. Political Analysis. 1 Unit.
An introduction to key concepts in hypothesis formulation and the application of basic statistical techniques. The course covers descriptive statistics, hypothesis testing, correlation and regression analysis, and their application in political analysis. Prerequisite: Sophomore, Junior or Senior standing (or permission of Department).
POLI 285. Independent Study. 0.5 or 1 Units.

POLI 290. Special Topics in Political Science. 1 Unit.

POLI 301. International Relations. 1 Unit.
A survey of the diplomatic, legal, economic, military, and organizational relations of nations and the major contemporary problems of world politics. The forces of change in the international system and the impact of sovereignty, nationalism, and power politics are given special attention.

POLI 304. Russian Foreign Policy. 1 Unit.
An examination of Russia’s role in world affairs. After a brief introduction to the history of Russian foreign policy, the course addresses three major topics: the development of the Soviet Union as the leader of the Communist movement; the behavior of the Soviet Union as a superpower; and Russia’s descent from power in the Gorbachev and Yeltsin eras and beyond. Considerable attention is given to Russia’s current attempt to define for itself a new world role.

POLI 306V. Law and Society. 1 Unit.
This course focuses on Stetson’s Social Justice Value. The issues of American civil liberties and civil rights are viewed within the framework of decisions of the United States Supreme Court.

POLI 310V. Biographies of the Charismatic: Populist Movements from the Farmers Alliance to the Tea Party. 1 Unit.
This course focuses on Stetson’s Social Justice Value. An assessment of the eruption of populist movements on the American political scene from the 1890’s to the present. The course examines biographies of leading populist figures to illustrate how social movements challenged the existing political, social, and economic order, at times using the language of social justice to advance injustice. Junior Seminar.

POLI 312. Practical Politics. 1 Unit.
An analysis of American electoral politics, with an emphasis on presidential campaigns and elections and the factors that affect their outcome. The goal of the course is to develop an understanding of the political process as a means of encouraging effective citizen participation.

POLI 314. Public Administration. 1 Unit.
An introduction to public bureaucracies in the United States that covers conceptual topics, such as organizational theory and principal-agent relations, as well as practical subjects like public budgeting and personnel management. Examining issues that lie at the nexus of politics and administration, the course prepares students for careers in government service or private businesses that deal regularly with government agencies.

POLI 315. American Health Care Policy. 1 Unit.
Reviews the history of health care in America, concentrating on the history of health care public policies (Medicaid, Medicare) and studies. We will study the parties involved in shaping health care policies. Course reading will be supplemented by speakers representing the health care industry, health care consumers and the government. We will also look at the ethical and political problems posed by health care issues such as AIDS and genetic testing.

POLI 316V. Environmental Politics. 1 Unit.
This course focuses on Stetson’s Environmental Responsibility Value. Applies public policy analytic models to help explain why governments pursue the policies they do, and what the consequences of these policies are. Students will examine hopeful responses to dilemmas of climate change, deforestation, ozone depletion, over-fishing, and other global phenomena. Junior Seminar.

POLI 317. Business, Labor and the State. 1 Unit.
This course provides a historical analysis of the changing relationship among business, labor and the American state. By viewing history through the lens of these three central actors in American politics we will develop a deeper understanding of the United States’ political economy, including how the state has shaped the fortunes of workers and business.

POLI 318. The American Presidency. 1 Unit.
Examines individual presidencies, as well as the presidential election process, and political science theories of the presidency. In a discussion format, students will examine changing criteria for a “successful” presidency and dilemmas of leadership for American presidents in the media age.

POLI 319. Voters, Campaigns and Elections. 1 Unit.
An in-depth examination of contemporary American electoral politics. After placing U.S. elections in comparative context, the course will focus on the factors that shape the nature of U.S. elections and their outcomes. Special attention will be given to campaign strategy and finance, the role of the media, the factors shaping citizens voting decisions, and the interpretation of election outcomes.

POLI 320. Congress. 1 Unit.
Examines the role of Congress in the process of making and overseeing public policy. The course will also focus on the politics of legislation and the dilemma of the “constant campaign.” The course provides preparation for the Model Senate program held in spring.

POLI 322. The American Judicial Process. 1 Unit.
Examines the roles of American courts and judges in the processes of formulating public policy. Emphasis is placed on the interplay of politics and jurisprudence in the operation of the courts.

POLI 323V. Western Political Thought: Classical to Modern. 1 Unit.
This course focuses on Stetson’s Ethical or Spiritual Inquiry Value. Through an analysis of such primary texts as Plato’s The Republic, Augustine’s City of God, and Machiavelli’s The Prince, this course traces the development of political thought from its ancient concerns with virtue and political community to the modern emphasis on freedom and statecraft. In learning how others thought about the role of politics in human society, students will better understand their own value preferences and philosophical orientations in politics.
POLI 324V. Western Political Thought: Modern to Contemporary. 1 Unit.
This course focuses on Stetson's Ethical or Spiritual Inquiry Value. Begins with texts that reveal the origins of modern American and European democratic theories. After an assessment of the conservative arguments against these theories, the course tackles the development of the two dominant political ideologies of the 19th and 20th centuries, liberalism and Marxism. Texts to be studied include Leviathan by Hobbes, On Liberty by Mill, and The Communist Manifesto by Marx.

POLI 328V. Civic Engagement. 1 Unit.
This course focuses on Stetson's Social Justice Value. Begins with an analysis of the causes and consequences of contemporary civic disengagement and widespread cynicism about all things political. We then ask, "What can students do about it?" Students design and implement their own service learning or community-based research project and commit themselves to creating and/or significantly participating in a local action-oriented social and/or political organization. Junior Seminar.

POLI 330V. Ethnicity and Politics. 1 Unit.
This course focuses on Stetson's Human Diversity Value. Examines the full range of issues in the politics of ethnicity, from the origins of ethnic consciousness to the varieties of ethnic conflict and the means that states and non-governmental organizations have used to manage this conflict.
Case studies will focus on Central Asia, India, Eastern Europe, and the United States, although frequent reference will also be made to conditions in Southeast Asia and Africa.

POLI 338. Central Asia: Politics and Society in the Russian, Chinese, and Middle Eastern Borderlands. 1 Unit.
Long a peripheral region of European and Asian empires, Central Asia is now reclaiming its own identity in the wake of the collapse of the USSR.
The primary focus of the course is on politics, society, and foreign policies in the new Central Asian states of Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, and Uzbekistan, though some attention will also be given to the Turkic regions of western China as well as Iran and Afghanistan. Among the topics to be examined are Islamic revivalism, ethnic conflict, national security, the attempts to construct modern national identities as well as modern political and economic systems.

POLI 340. Russian Politics. 1 Unit.
An examination of the domestic politics of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and its successor states. The central concern of the course is the perennial dominance of authoritarianism over democracy in Russian political culture and behavior. Through a study of relations between ethnic groups, political institutions, citizen and the state, and the center and provinces, the course illustrates the tortuous path toward political change in Russia and the neighboring lands of Eurasia.

POLI 346. Latin American Politics. 1 Unit.
Introduces the student to the study of the political systems of Latin America. Presents some elements and characteristics common to most states of the region, examining subsequently the great political revolutions that Latin America has experienced in the 20th century, including the ongoing "democratic revolution.

POLI 348. Politics in Africa. 1 Unit.
This course will explore contemporary political regimes in Sub-Saharan Africa in the context of the continent’s complicated historical relationship with globalization, and its equally complicated mix of indigenous cultures, social systems, and political practices. Special emphasis will be placed on the experiences of, and prospects for, democratic governance in the region. Prerequisite: POLI 201S.

POLI 353V. International Law. 1 Unit.
This course focuses on Stetson's Social Justice. Focuses on the relationship between international law and international politics. It provides the students with insight into historical, cultural and theoretical aspects of law as well as basic information on traditional international law topics such as the law of the sea, laws on the use of force, and international human rights.

POLI 355V. International Environmental Activism. 1 Unit.
This course focuses on Stetson's Environmental Responsibility Value. Reviews the development of environmentalism as a social movement, both national and transnational, and as a pragmatic endeavor involving thousands of non-governmental organizations (NGOs). Students delve into the theoretical literature on the subject, and examine a variety of small and large environmental NGOs. They also learn about the difficult and rewarding task of creating an environmental NGO and sustaining it over time. Junior Seminar.

POLI 385. Independent Study. 0.5 or 1 Units.

POLI 390. Special Topics in Political Science. 1 Unit.

POLI 395. Teaching Apprenticeship. 0.5 Units.
Pass/Fail only. Arranged by mutual agreement between faculty member and student, the teaching apprenticeship allows students to assist the professor in a course in which they have exceptional interest and ability. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor. May be repeated once.

POLI 397. Internship in Political Science. 0.5 or 1 Units.
Pass/Fail only. Students will be accepted into the course by permission only and must have at least second year standing, at least two course units in political science, and an overall 2.5 GPA. In addition to completing approximately 150 hours in the internship, students will be required to present a journal describing some aspects of that experience and a 10-12-page paper on a topic related to the internship. The field supervisor will also be asked for a letter of evaluation. No more than one internship course can be used to satisfy major requirements. Enrollment in an internship course requires students to attend an orientation prior to beginning work at their internship site. For more information regarding internship orientations, please contact Career & Professional Development at career@stetson.edu or 386-822-7315.
POLI 415. American Constitutional Law. 1 Unit.
An analysis of cases and controversies arising from the constitutional principles of separation of powers and federalism. The case method will be used in studying issues such as federal-state and congressional-presidential conflict.

POLI 425V. Contemporary Political Thought. 1 Unit.
This course focuses on Stetson's Ethical or Spiritual Inquiry Value. Directed at current major theoretical statements concerning some of the most important ideas in political philosophy: justice, freedom, liberty, equality, self, community, individual rights, pluralism, and democracy. Current philosophers such as John Rawls, Robert Nozick, Michael Sandel, Seyla Benhabib, and Juergen Habermas will be studied. The goal is not to come up with the "correct interpretation," given the controversy surrounding each philosopher, but to come to the best understanding we can of the ideas presented and, most importantly, how they fit with, and perhaps change, our ideas.

POLI 426. American Political Thought. 1 Unit.
The objectives of this course are (1) an inquiry into the politics of ideas in America and (2) an attempt to draw the connection between theories, religious values, and American institutions. Students will read selections by Jefferson and Hamilton, Alexis de Tocqueville’s Democracy in America, Lincoln’s speeches, an intellectual biography of Jane Addams, among many other works.

POLI 427V. Democracy and Political Participation. 1 Unit.
This course focuses on Stetson's Social Justice Value. Examines theoretical and practical relationships between democracy and the political participation of groups and individual citizens. Contemporary issues of declining participation and interest in democratic politics (“civic disengagement”) throughout the world are discussed alongside efforts to address these problems through participatory and elite-restraining institutional reforms.

POLI 451. Politics of International Trade and Finance. 1 Unit.
Presents the theoretical framework for the study of the political aspects of international economic relations. The course concentrates on the evolution and deterioration of the post WW II Bretton Woods system, looking in particular at globalization, interdependence, North-South cooperation, and emerging patterns of conflict as well as emerging regimes of global and regional coordination and cooperation.

POLI 462. International Policy and Foreign Policy Seminar I. 0.25 to 1 Units.
This course is not a Stetson University course; it is connected to the Washington Semester academic opportunity.

POLI 463. International Policy and Foreign Policy Seminar II. 0.25 to 1 Units.
This course is not a Stetson University course; it is connected to the Washington Semester academic opportunity.

POLI 464. International Policy and Foreign Policy Research Project. 0.25 to 1 Units.
This course is not a Stetson University course; it is connected to the Washington Semester academic opportunity.

POLI 465. International Policy and Foreign Policy Internship. 0.25 to 1 Units.
This course is not a Stetson University course; it is connected to the Washington Semester academic opportunity.

POLI 485. Independent Study. 0.5 or 1 Units.

POLI 490. Special Topics in Political Science. 0.75 to 1 Units.

POLI 495. Independent Study. 0.5 or 1 Units.

POLI 496. Washington Semester. 4 Units.

POLI 499. Senior Project. 1 Unit.
Senior standing (or permission of the Department). Provides students with an opportunity to do advanced research in a political science area of particular interest to them. Students write a senior thesis after a directed study of the research literature and the problems associated with it. The course is a “capstone” experience in research, writing, argumentation, and exploration of the field of Political Science.
