Minor in Accounting - 4 Units

The minor in accounting is available to all Stetson undergraduate students. The minor is designed to offer a comprehensive background in the principles and practices of accounting as well as the option of focusing on specific areas of interest.

The minor field of study in accounting is generally viewed as a complementary and desirable adjunct to anyone majoring in any business discipline. It also adds a positive diversification to any non-business major, particularly those who plan to study business or accounting at the graduate level.

Courses

ACCT 190. Special Topics in Accounting. 1 Unit.

ACCT 191. Special Topics in Accounting. 1 Unit.

ACCT 201. Fundamentals of Accounting. 1 Unit.

In Accounting I, you will learn not only the technical vocabulary of business but also essential business skills such as how data from common business transactions is captured, summarized, and reported to interested decision makers. You will begin to learn how to read and interpret the resulting financial statements. You will begin to encounter ethical dilemmas that are inherent in financial reporting situations and to develop your own responses to them. In short, Accounting I is a course that is critical to your future success as a business student and to your later career in the business world. You will learn how to make sound business decisions and how to predict the consequences that those decisions will have on your company's profitability and solvency. You will learn how to prepare a plan for your company's future (i.e., a budget) and how to compare actual results to your plan. The information in this course needs to be retained and applied far beyond the end of the semester if you are to be a successful business professional. Co-requisite: SOBA 201.

ACCT 202. Fundamentals of Accounting II. 1 Unit.
